Q. What is Master CSE training?

Master Communication System Engineering is a joint international program between Grenoble Institute of Technology (France) and Politecnico di Torino (Italy).

The objective of this training is to offer a high level balanced training between the 3 main fields of telecommunications: computer science/networks, electronics and signal processing.

The first year takes place in Torino, Italy. The 3rd semester takes place in Grenoble (France) and the 4th semester consists in an end studies project, which can be performed anywhere, under supervision of a Grenoble Faculty member.

Q. Are the lectures in French or Italian language?

No. All the lectures are taught in English.

Q. Is a minimum English level required to be admitted?

For Grenoble INP and Politecnico di Torino applicants no minimum English level is required.
For other applicants, a minimum level of IELTS 6/TOEFL IBT 87/TOEIC 550 required.

At the end of Master CSE program, and for ALL the students, a minimum level of English corresponding to B2 European standard level (TOEIC 750) is asked to be awarded the Grenoble INP engineering degree.
TOEIC sessions are organized at Grenoble INP, during the 3rd semester of the CSE program.

Q. Is it possible to start Master CSE studies in France before going to Italy?

No.
